

HOW TO SPOT A TWO-FACED HYPOCRITE

HYPOCRITES:

- Say one thing but do another.
- Treat those in power differently than they treat underlings.
- Give advice but fail to follow their own guidance.
- Preach tolerance but judge others who don't conform to their way of thinking.
- Volunteer others but rarely raise their own hand.
- Live one way in public but another in private.
- Pretend to be someone they're not merely to win acceptance.
- Make rules but fail to follow the rules themselves.
- Preach morality but live a shameful life.
- Demand things of others that they're unwilling to do themselves.
- Say one thing to someone's face but another thing behind their back.
- Pretend to be wealthy even though their bank account is scanty.
- Alter their opinion to gain acceptance from people with differing viewpoints.
- Condemn the actions of others even though they commit those same acts themselves.
- Promote a holier-than-thou image merely to offset reckless behavior.
- Help people only when it's in their personal interest to do so.
- Pretend to care even when their motive is really self-serving.
- Demand austerity for others but handsomely compensate themselves.
- Feign outrage even though they have no intention of doing anything about it.
- Penalize some folks for wrongdoing but look the other way for everyone else.
- Lecture people about morality but cover up for their friends.
- Judge others but call people intolerant when they're personally judged.
- Act one way when folks are looking, the opposite when they're not.
